

Mission

New City Kids' mission is "loving kids for change to create a community of academic, leadership, musical, and spiritual development." The program has a two-tiered structure, each tier complimenting the other. First, New City Kids operates a highly structured academic and performing arts focused after school center for 70 at-risk children ages six to thirteen, four days a week. But what really makes the after school center unique is the second tier. Instead of staffing the program with paid adults or volunteers, 35 high school students are employed. These 450-hour internships are designed to open teens' eyes to their own amazing abilities and to awaken them to the joy of leadership, the goodness of earning money, the attainability of a college education and the transforming power of God's love.

Position Summary

The Site Director will lead and manage a staff of experienced, high-energy youth workers as a well-balanced team to run both tiers of New City Kids' program. This will require good management skills. The Site Director will also keep the highly creative and talented team moving in a coordinated direction. This will require strategic planning skills and an ability to grasp and communicate the vision. But to be an effective leader of youth leaders, the Site Director must also be a practitioner. They must enjoy being with kids and model what it means to never give up on kids. This will require a missionary zeal for urban children. Finally, the Site Director must be an ambassador for the mission and pro-actively foster relationships with donors who can support the work. This will require good organizational and communication skills.
